The puzzle is set in a valley where columns create a passage to the goal.

The player can descend into the valley, even with objects.

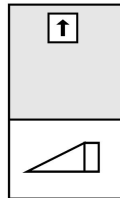

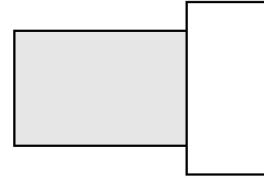

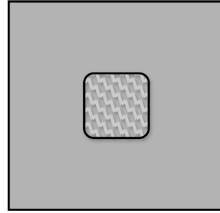

There are two sides from which the player can reach the central part of the puzzle, where the crate is located.

One of these starting points is not necessary to solve the puzzle, but the goal of having more than one starting point is to confuse the player and make the puzzle more challenging.

Step 1

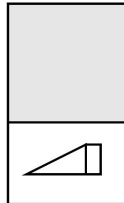

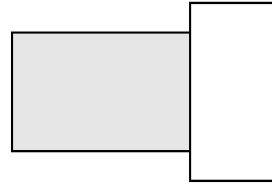

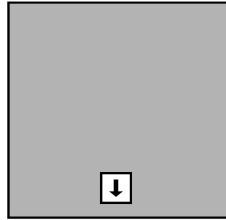

The first move is to reach the crate, with the plank and the ramp.

Step 2

With the crate, the player now can bring the plank where the crate was.

From here with the plank directioned to the starting point, the crate can be moved on the other side.

Step 3

And now with the plank and the crate the player can easily reach the goal.
